1. ORGANIZATION OF THE DEPARTMENT

THE SECRETARY OF STATE

The Secretary of State, who is the highest ranking Cabinet member, is charged, under the direction of the President, with the conduct of negotiations of whatever character relating to the foreign affairs of the United States, and has charge of the correspondence with the diplomatic and consular representatives of the United States and with the representatives of foreign powers accredited to the United States. The Secretary of State grants and issues passports to nationals of the United States. Exequaturs to foreign consuls in the United States are issued through his office. He prescribes, promulgates, and administers regulations under treaties and laws governing international traffic in arms. He has custody of the seal of the United States, of current records relating to Presidential electors, and of the originals of acts and resolutions of Congress subsequent to the sixty-seventh Congress, and treaties, conventions, and other international agreements of the United States subsequent to August 14, 1906, and proclamations thereof by the President. He certifies the adoption of amendments to the Constitution of the United States. He publishes the acts and resolutions of Congress, territorial papers, treaties and other international acts of the United States, and papers relating to the foreign relations of the United States.
